THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION.

VOL. XXII.

ATLANTA, GA., WEDNESDAY MORNING, JANUARY 21, 1891.

THE GAG RULE

WILL BE IN ORDER IN THE SENATE TODAY.

ALL-DAY TALK ON THE FORCE BILL. Senator George Occupies the Floor for Four Hours-The Gag Rule Will Have Precedence Today.

WASHINGTON, January 20 .- [Special.]-The big fight over the cloture rule, expected in the senate, was prevented and another day gained mocratic opposition by the shrewd generalship of Senator Gorman.

All through the long fight which commenced on the second day of December, Senator Gor-man has outgeneraled Senators Hoar and

The movements of the Marylander today were without a flaw. Indeed, his management of the fight has demonstrated to the republicans that, although they have the numbers, this is to be be no Sioux campaign. They have begun to realize that they must fight very hard

THE FIRST SKIRMISH. The first skirmish of the day opened at 2 o'clock, and resulted in a repulse of the republican attack, Mr. Aldrich had just called up the cloture rule without objection. Senator Harris, of Tennessee, was making a point of order against it, that the proper advance no-tice had not been given of a motion or resolution to change the rules, when the hour of 2 o'clock arrived.

Then, under the rules, it was the duty of the vice president to lay the election bill before the senate, and according to the republican programme Mr. Aldrich moved that the cloture rule be retained before the senate until disposed of. At the same moment, however, Senator George, of Mississippi, claimed that he had the right of the floor to conclude his remarks on the force bill, begun a week ago and resumed yesterday. Mr. George refused to yield to anyone, and as the vice president had no power to take him off the floor, he held it until nearly 6 o'clock, discussing the Mississippi constitution.

THE NEW DEAL. At 3:30 o'clock, after talking three and a half hours, Senator George asked Senator Butler to read a long extract for him while he rested. The republicans, however, objected to George subleasing the floor to the Carolinian, and raised such a furor about it that Mr. George propped himself against his desk, and with his arms dangling at his side and his tongue almost hanging out from pure exhaustion, continued to drop words from Seeing that Senator George would fall from exhaustion soon, Senator Gorman arranged a new move, and motioned to the Mississippian to stop. He at once dropped into his chair, completely exhausted from his four hours

Then Senator Aldrich moved to take up the Senator Gorman made no objection, and the rule was apparently taken up by unanimous consent. Hoar and Aldrich were surprised at this, but having gotten it before the sen-ate, moved to adjourn. Thus the cloture rule is now the order for tomorrow, instead of the force bill. Indeed, the gag rule resolution has displaced the fore bill. But Senator Gorman's contemplated tactics, the democrats be-lieve, will knock the entire republican programme into a cocked hat before the week

SENATOR GORMAN'S OBJECT. Senator Gorman's object in not having an aye and nay vote on taking up the cloture this afternoon was to prevent the republicans from learning his strength, and to prevent embar-rassing or committing certain republicans who, when the proper time comes, will vote against adopting any sort of a cloture or gag rule.

There are, perhaps, ten of these men-enough to kill the rule. They are, however, saying nothing just now. But had Senator Gorman exhibited his strength this early a few of his supporters now being in the enemy's camp night have been captured and held by them. Comorrow when debate opens on the rule, there will be some sharp skirmishing. The fight to a finish is not expected, however, before Thursday or Friday. All agree that the long battle will be fought to a close this week, and one or the other parties must be victorious.

The Routine in the Senate. All the morning business being disposed of, Mr. Aldrich moved that the senate proceed to the con-sideration of the resolution to change the rules, submitted by him on the 29th of December last. The motion was agreed to without contest on

The motion was agreed the democratic side.

Mr. Harris rose to a question of order, and quoted rule 40, which provides that no motion to modify, amend, or suspend a rule, or part thereof, shall be in order except on one day's thereof, shall be in order except on one day's notice in writing, specifying precisely the rule, or part, proposed to be suspended, modified or amended, and the parts thereof. The notice given did not, he sald, call attention to the part of any rule proposed to be modified, but simply left the chair and each senator to find it out for himself. He, therefore, argued that the notice was not sufficiently specific.

THE ELECTION BILL TAKEN UP.

The discussion was progressing when, at 2 o'clock, the vice president laid before the senate as unfinished business the elections bill, and Mr.

ess the elections bill, and Mr orge took the floor to continue his speech

The point of order was made by Mr. Edmunds that a question of a change of rules was a privi-leged question, which superseded all other business.

that a question of a change of runes was a privileged question, which superseded all other business.

This point was contested by Mr. Blackburn.
Mr. George, however, claimed the floor and declined to riel to anybody. He was a yielding man and had yielded himself nearly out of court. He then went on with his speech. He claimed (on the lines of his arguhnent yesterday) that the franchise clause in the new constitution of Mississippl was less capable of being misunderstood or perverted than were like clauses in other state constitution of Mississippi wolated, in any respect, the constitution of the United States.

In contradicting the statament of Dolph, some weeks ago, as to what the constitution of Mississippi provided in relation to voting qualifications,
Mr. George suggested that senators who indulged
In such criticisms had never read the constitution of Mississippi, and he, therefore, asked and obtained unanimous consent of the house to have it published in The Congressional Record as an appendix to his speech is to be printed.

Mr. BUTLER READS A CHAPTER.

After Wr. George had snoken for peacly, these

MR. BUTLER READS A CHAPTER.

After Mr. George had spoken for nearly three hours and a half, Mr. Butler, with a view to give him a resting spell, asked him to yield the floor so that he (Butler) might send to the clerk's desk and have read a chapter of the revised statutes relating to the subject of elections. Mr. George assented willingly to that arrangement, and, after the secretary had read for a few minutes, Mr. Butler noticed that the chapter which was being read was not the one he meant, and he sent for the volume and said he would read the chapter bimself.

the volume and said ne would read the cuspen-timeelf.

Before he had began to read, Mr. Morgan rose and said that he now took the floor on the election bill, but he was informed by the vice president that he had the name of the senator from Rhode Island (Mr. Aldrich) Ext on the list to speak on the bill. Mr. Morgan protested against that as a violation of the rules, and said that the chair could not make an agreement beforehand to parcel out the floor.

The vice president's response to this was to an-nt the floor.

The vice president's response to this was to anounce that Mr. George was entitled to the floor, and Mr. Edmunds insisted on the regular order.

SENATOR HOAE'S OBJECTION.

Mr. George again offered to yield the floor to the control of the control o ing that under the usages of the senate one sena-tor had no right to hold the floor and yield to another except by unanimous consent, otherwise a senator might hold the floor for a whole session. The vice president again announced that the senator from Mississippi was entitled to the floor, but Mr. Butler suggested that Mr. George had yielded to him.

"He cannot yield to anybody," said Mr. Ed-

Then Mr. George inquired what was the present situation and whether he had the floor or not; and was again informed by the vice president that he (Mr. George) was entitled to the floor. MR. GEORGE ANXIOUS TO READ.

After an interchange of parliamentary sugges-tions between Messrs. Butler and Edmunds, Mr. Butler asked Mr. George if he would permit him the property statutes. to read a few sections from the revised statutes.

to read a few sections from the revised statutes.

"If it be agreeable, said Mr. George, to the gentlemen who controls the senate; but! do not wish to be guilty of anything like high treason."

Mr. Butler took that answer for consent, and said that he would proceed to read from the revised statutes. He was stopped, however, by an objection from Mr. Hoar, and the vice president sustained the objection.

Mr. Butler undertook to state the position of the question, but was stopped by an objection from Mr. Sherman, who said that a porn of order having been made against the senator from South Carolina, it was his duty to take his seat and allow the chair to decide the point.

Mr. Butler intimated that it was quittumeeessary for the senator from Ohio to administer a lecture to him.

"Then," said Mr. Sherman, with a show of irritation, "I demand the enforcement of the rule."

The vice president gave it as his opinion that Mr. Sherman's point of order was well taken, and that the senator from South Carolina should resume his seat until the point was decided by the chair.

"Very well, sir," said Mr. Butler, resuming his chair. "Very well, sir," said Mr. Butler, resuming his "Very well, sir," said Mr. Butler, resuming his seat.

"The chair is of the opinion," the vice president said, "that a senator entitled to the floor cannot transfer that right to any other senator."

Mr. George then resumed the floor, and picking up a pile of manuscript, commenced to read a dissertation upon the origin and history of African slavery in the United States.

After some ten minutes he complained of being. "very weary." and inquired whether he might ask the senator from South Carolina to read the speech, or a part of it for him, so that he might have a little rest.

To that proposition Mr. Aldrich objected, and Mr. George resumed the reading with the words, "immediately after the discovery of America," which caused considerable laughter.

At the idea that there was so much more to come, after another ten' minutes reading. Mr. Aldrich asked Mr. George if he would yield to him for a motion to take up a resolution submitted by him on the 29th of December, and "which was under consideration this morning."

"That cloture rule?" queried Mr. George.

"Yes."

"Well, I believe." said Mr. George, with an air

ALDRICH MAKES A MOTION.

"Then I move," Mr. Aldrich proceeded, "that

"But," said Mr. George, "I want to know what becomes of my right to the floor."

"And I want to know." Mr. Butler put in, "what becomes of the decision of the chair that one senator cannot yield the floor to another except by mannimous consent. I object."

"Oh! no," Mr. George pleaded, "Do not object. I am pretty nearly worn out. But here," he added, after a moment, "is a point I want settled with our good friends on the other side. If I give up to the cloture rule, and it is adopted, and I get the floor afterwards, I want to know whether I will be exempt from that rule, or whether I will be exempt from that rule, or whether I will be under it. If I am to have a dispensation by which I am not to be caught by the rule, I shall be anxious to surrender the floor now."

Mr. Culom said that Mr. George would have to take his chances on that, and Mr. Aldrich said that he did not understand that there was any motion before the senate.

"Make your motion," said Mr. George, but Mr. Aldrich said he would not.

MR. GEORGE RESUMES.

MR. GEORGE RESUMES.

"Then," said Mr. George, "I will go on and I get fresh as I go on. [Laughter.] I hope that nobody will act on the idea that I want a rest, because it is a great pleasure to me to entertain the senate on the very important matters that I am now read-on the very important matters that I am now reading." [Laughter.]

He had hardly started again, when Mr. Aldrich once more asked whether he would yield the floor to him; and he was told that Mr. George would yield the floor with great pleasure.
"Then I move," said Mr. Aldrich a second time, "that the senate do now proceed to the consideration of the resolution submitted by me on the 28th of December, and which was under consideration during the morning hour."
Mr. Morgan addressed the chair, but the vice president, without recognizing Mr. Morgan, put the question on Mr. Aldrich's motion. There was a response of ayes, followed by one of nays, and

MORGAN IS AT LAST RECOGNIZED. Then Mr. Morgan pressed his claim to recognition, saying that he had addressed the chair five or six times and that he thought that the chair saw him.

He was also asked by the vice president to state his object. He repited that he had been on his feel addressing the chair, retpectfully, and that he did not propose to be overlooked.

Mr. Aldrich—Lask that the resolution be laid before the senate in accordance with the vote.

Mr. Morgan—I desire to know whether there is any agreement of the senate about this matter.

The vice president directed the clerk to read the resolution, and it was read accordingly.

The vice president directed the clerk to read the resolution, and it was read accordingly.

Mr. Aldrich—Did the chair decide that the motion which I made was adopted?

The Vice President—The senator from Rhode Island is entitled to the floor. Island is entitled to the floor.

Mr. Ransom (who had been trying for some time to be recognized)—The chair did not decide it, and uld not decide it.

A PARLIAMENTARY WRANGLE. Mr. Morgan—I rise to a point of order.
The Vice President—The senator from Alabama will state his point of order.

will state his point of order.

Mr. Morgan—My point of order is this: The senator from Mississippi had the floor and yielded it, under some agreement which has not been explained to the senate. I have several times asked, very respectfully, to know what that agreement was, and I now respectfully ask the chair whether or not the senator from Mississippi has yielded the floor absolutely, or under some agreement.

The vice president—The chair has no knowledge of any agreement.

The vice president—Interest a point of order.

Mr. Aldrich—That is not a point of order.

Mr. Morgan—It is a point of order, because if there is any agreement about it I want to object.

Mr. Aldrich—There was no agreement made.

The senator from Mississippi yielded the floor

WHAT CARLISLE SAYS.

Mr. Carlisle—The situation is this: The senator rom Mississippi, before concluding his remarks, rielded to the senator from Rhode Island for the purpose of making a motion. What the right of purpose of making a motion. What the right of the senator from Mississippi may be is the question that will arise hereafter in case we resume consideration of the elections bill, and is not a question that can be decided now.

"That is true, exactly," said Mr. Edmunds.

"Yes." continued Mr. Morgan, "but I want to know whether there is any agreement about it." "There is no agreement, so far as I am concerned," Mr. Aldrich said.

"I addressed the chair very politely and respectfully," Mr. Morgan was going on to say, when Mr. Edmunds broke in with an inquiry as to whit the pending question was.

"That resolution being pending," said Mr. Aldrich, "I move that the senate do now adjourn." ourn."
At this point the vice president recognized Mr. Ransom, and asked Mr. Aldrich whether he with-Ranson, and asked down.

"I do not," said Mr. Aldrich, and thereupon the vice president put the question and at 6:15 o'clock declared the senate adjourned till tomorrow at 10 clock a. m. AFTER ADJOURNMENT.

AFTER ADJOURNMENT.

After the vice president had left the chair, but while the secretary and clerks were still at the desk, Mr. Ransom walked up to the desk and declared, emphatically, that the question on taking up the resolution had not been decided by the senate and that the result of the vote had not been declared by the vice president.

The secretary and clerks gave their recollection in the matter, and the official reporter read his shorthand notes, which showed that the vice president had said that the ayes appeared to have it, and that he had subsequently laid the resolution before the senate.

Mesers. Hoar and Aldrich were in the group about the clerk's desk, and argued that the resolution was formally and properly before the senate. Mr. Ransom, however, was not satisfied, and may bring up the question tomorrow on the adoption of the journal.

The Object of the Republicans.

The full meaning of the object of President Harrison, Senator Hoar, Speaker Reed and the other republican partisans is just coming pass, but what they expect to put upon the peo-ple of the south is far more outrageous than the bill now pending.

A republican in a position to know, told me today it was their object to put a pending bill, or even a milder one, through the senate by the opperation of a gag rule, and then, when it goes to the conference committee, to add all the Quay bill features, and many even more damnable. A conference report is privileged in both houses, and can easily be rushed through. That is the reason, my informant says, they are waiting for a conference to put the bill in-the shape they want the law to be. The idea is, he says, to make the bill operative only upon a petition of voters, and the names of these petitioners are to be kept a secret. Then where they are petitioned for, or where the local supervisors of state board of canvassers call for them. It is to provide for absolute federal control without state interference, and for any number of deputy marshals the supervisors may desire. The federal supervisors to have absolute charge of the polis. They are to make returns charge of the polls. They are to make returns to a federal state board of canvassers, who shall have absolute power of certification. In other words, it would be a law that would give republican returning boards absolute power to declare ten republicans elected from Georgia if they desired, and these men would

The supervisors, marshals and returning state in the union. Of course, they would be northern men, sent south under military protection After stealing southern states they would return north at once. Although it is entirely probable my informant is correct that Harrison, Hoar and Reed would enact just such a law as this if they had it in their power, from present appearances, the safest predic-tion, if one was forced to predict, would be that no force bill can pass.

There are many democrats, however, who would predict just to the contrary.

Pandemonium in the House.

Pandemonium broke loose in the house and for a time it looked like there would be a general rough and tumble fight between the dem-

The excitement following the adoption of "Reed's rules" at the last session, was but a gentle zephyr compared with the whirlwind this afternoon.

According to the democratic programm delay, they demanded the reading of the journal in full. It was 1 o'clock when this was completed, and McKinley immediately moved to approve it. He had, however, first moved the previous question on it.

Speaker Reed only considered the motion o approve the journal, and put the question.

MILLS TAKES THE FLOOR.
At this Mr. Mills arose and declared the notion on the previous question should first be put. Reed, however, paid no attention to roll. At this Mr. Mills flew into a passion, and denounced Reed roundly, concluding by yelling: "You are perpetrating a fraud on this house." Reed only smiled in reply, and ordered the clerk to go on calling the roll. Then Mills worked himself into a perfect fury, and rushed down the aisle shaking his list first at Reed and then at the republicans who were applauding. AND MCKINLEY AFPEARS. McKinley walked to the front also, and Miles shook his fist at him, and cried out:

"We relied upon the gentleman from Ohio being an honest man, but we knew the At this bedlam broke loose. Every man in the house jumped to his feet. Kerr, an Iowa republican yelled, pointing to Mills,

"Such proceedings are treasonoble, and they

"You are a traitor yourself to the con tion," Mr. Mills replied, rushing towards Mr. Kerr, "and you are a d-d traitor and a-

At this moment the cries, cheers and yells became so loud that the other words of the Iowian could not be distinguished but many choice expressions of denunciations generally made use of only by stable boys, were heard above the uproar. STOPPED IN HIS CAREER.

Mr. Mills was apparently rushing toward Kerr when some of the calmer democrats stopped him. Members were shaking their fists across the aisle at other and hurling epithets each lessly, when the sergeant-at-arms, with his mace of authority, rushed into the turbulent crowd, scattering them right and left. The more dignified members pulled their excited friends into seats and in a few moments it was all over.

The house did absolutely nothing. The democrats have all business blocked, awaiting the result of the force bill fight in the senate. Tomorrow Reed, Mc-Kinley and Cannon will attempt to have the house adopt a rule to cut off filibustering on the part of the democrats. More lively scene are promised in both the house and senate during the remainder of the week.

The Richmond and Danville. The directors of the Richmond and Da ville Piedmont Air-Line system of railroad have decided to make a change in the agement, to take effect upon the 1st of Feb Major Peyton Randolph, who is now general manager, has been made third vice president of the Richmond and Danville and Mr. William H. Green, now superintendent, is to be general manager.

The Georgia Pacific will also be under Mr. Green's management and will be put in firstclass condition at once.

Governor Hill's Chances.

The unan mous election of Governor Hil by the democratic national caucus last night, to succeed Senator Evarts, was one of the principal topics of conversation at the capito today. The supporters of Mr. Cleveland say that by accepting it Governor Hill practically kisses goodby to his chances of capturing the presidential nomination next year, but the latter's partisans assert that the abdication of sidential candidacy does not necessarily follow Governor Hill's acception of a seat in the senate. They believe that it will in no wise decrease his availability or his power in today.

Washington, January 20 .- [Special.]-Postmaster Lewis is figuring in the newspapers

The Star says the announcement in an Atlanta telegram last night concerning the observance of Lee's birthday that "the postoffice kept regular holiday hours," has attracted considerable attention at the postoffice department, and inquiry devoloped the fact that no request had been received from the Atlanta postmaster for permission to close his office on that day.

The Star reporter interviewed First Assist ant Postmaster General Whitfield, who stated that it was customary to obtain permission from the department when a postoffice was to be closed on any day that was not a legal holi-day. He added, however, that the regulations gave the postmaster authority to close his office, and referred to the following paragraph as in question:

Postmasters may observe as holidays January as the president of the United States, or the governors in their respective states, may designate as fast or Thanksgiving Day, or proclaim specially

He said, however, that, if the postoffice at Atlanta was closed yesterday, as stated, it was done in violation of the usage of the department, even if this action was in accordance with the letter of the regulations. [A Constitution reporter called at the Kimball house last night for a talk with Postmaster Lawis.

Which Caused so Much Excitement in England.

Washington, January 20.—Secretary Blaine was asked by a representative of the Associated Press today if the state department had learned what was the cause of the "war" excitement a fortnight since in London. He replied that he had just received a copy of The London Times of January 6th, in which he found a dispatch from its regular American correspondent, dated Philadelphia, January 5th, as follows:

"Naval orders recently issued indicate the gathering of a formidable fleet in Pacific waters before Behring's sea fishing season opens. Eleven war ships and five revenue cutters are now, or will soon be, there, having ninety guns and 2,626 men. Eleven other steamers, it is rumored, will also be chartered for revenue duty, thereby increasing the fleet to twenty-three ships, with 118 guns and 3,000 men, including two of the fastest and most powerful of the new cruisers, the San Francisco and Charleston. All these can arrive at Fort Townsend by May. Six are at San Francisco and charleston. All these can arrive at Fort Townsend by May. Six are at San Francisco and charleston. All these can arrive at Fort Townsend by May. Six are at San Francisco and charleston. All these can arrive at Fort Townsend by May. Six are at San Francisco on the Pacific."

Mr. Blaine said that on hearing of this unfounded and mischevious telegram, be had sent to the havy department and had been informed by Secretary Tracey that there has been this winter a amaßer naval force on the Pacific than at any time for the last ten years. Instead of a large force with 118 guns and 3,000 men, as The Times correspondent stated, the whole number of ships is five, the guns thirty-one and the number of ships is five, the guns thirty-one and the number of ships is five, the guns thirty-one and the number of ships is five, the guns thirty-one and the number of ships is five, the guns thirty-one and the number of ships is five, the guns thirty-one and the number of ships is five, the guns thirty-one and the number

And that Is the Beason Why the Mar-riage Did Not Take Place. SHELBY, N. C., January 20.—[Special.]—One of the most terrible tragedies known in this county occurred last night at Joseph M. Washburn's store, nine miles from here.

Erastus Williamson, a young man twenty years old, was shot and killed by his brother Charles, old, was shot and Kilied by his proteer Charles, aged twenty-three.

There was no known cause for the deed. Charles Williamson was in Shelby yesterday afternoon, purchasing his marriage license and his wedding clothes. He returned home in good spirits, and after supper started for his brother-in-law's Joseph Washburn, owner of the store. When near there he met Erastus, who was riding in a dogcart with James Manuey. The latter had a jug of whisky with them, and invited charles to drink. After Charles took a big drink all started for the store.

THE TRAGEDY TAKES PLACE.
When the store was reached, Charles grabbed Brastos, pulled him out of the cart and hit him over the head several times with a bottle. Erastus over the head several times with a bottle. Erastus fell to the ground, when Chairles drew a pistol and shot him in the back just below the left shoulder, making a wound from which Erastus died of internal hemorrhage at 4 o'clock this morning. As soon as he fired the fatal shet. Charles went to his grandfather's and told him somebody had killed Erastus. He then went hone and told his father that he (Charles) had killed Erastus, and was going away. This was the last seen of him. Both love bear a had reputation, being hard drinkers and fond of gambling with others when under the influence of dirink.

The Investigating Committee Says He Is Innocent of the Charge.

TOPEKA, Kas., January 20.—The executive committee of the Farmers' Alliance, investigating the connection of President McGrath with the noted Turner letter, made its report last night, immediately after adjournment of the alliance caucus. The report contained the signature of all the committee and completely exonerated McGrath from any improper connection with the letter. Van B. Prather, state lecturer, made the report public.

When these facts were told the exar he ordered that the prisoner be released from custody. Orders were also given to return the check to Baron Ginsburg, but he refused to take it. The exar thereupon ordered that half of the money be given to the Red Cross society and the other half used for the relief of the poor.

HOOTING AT HEALY.

Parnellites Make it Warm for Him at DUBLIN, January 29.—Timothy Healy delivered a lecture yesterday evening at Mullingar, and a riotous scene was the result. A strong force of sympathizers with Parnell gathered outside the hall during the course of the lecture, and threats of violence toward Healy were freely uttered. When the latter emerged from the hall, he was greeted with a storm of hoots and yells, and a rush was made by the Parnellites in his direction. Luckily a number of priests, who had been present at the meeting, interposed themselves between Healy and the inturiated mob, and thus probably saved Healy from rough handling.

After prayer by the chaplain, Lieutenant Governor Merwin made a short address to the senate, explaining that circumstances over which he had no control kept 'him in that office longer than expected, and that thereby he was placed in a most delicate position. No one would welcome Alsop more cheerfully than he after the general assembly should declare him elected. Until then he himself would hold the office, and when it appeared his duty he would come and take up the gavel. He then called the president pro tem., Senator Read, to the chair and retired.

The report spread rapidly and was the superintendents of the mines. He came of a good family and has a good reputation. He numbers his friends by the score, and there was great his friends by the score, and there was great anxiety to find out how the killing occurred. It seems that one of the hands who goes under the name of Linsey Ewell refused to obey Mr. Lee's orders. Mr. Lee reprimanded him and the negro picked up a rock and at Mr. Lee's command dropped it. The negro then picked up a piece of iron ore and then Mr Lee shot him to save himself. This is one theory of the case, but is contradicted by other reports. A coroner's jury was quickly summoned, but they only heard one side of the case. All of the eye-witnesses to the tragedy were negroes in the mines, and as was to be expected they swore pretty heavily against Lee, so much so that the coroner's jury found a verdict of murder.

THE TRADE PROBABLY OFF. There Is But Little Chance of the Richmond and Danville Getting It.

ATHENS, Ga., January 20.—(Special.)—The proposed deal between the Richmond and Danville and the Covington and Macon hangs fire, and it is more than likely that no transfer of the latter road to the former will be made.

Talking with prominent railroad men in the city, it was learned that there had been several attempts at negotiations, and that no agreement could be reached. In fact, it was almost certain could be reached. In fact, it was almost certain that Alexander Brown, one of the commissioners of the Covington and Macon, is not anxious to sell at all. He is largely interested in the Georgia. Carolina and Northern, and also the Georgia Southern and Florida, and it appears that he does not wish to sell an intermediate line between these two, and thus cut off what would be a through connection. The proposed deal has created a great deal of talk here, as Athens is a terminus of the Covington and Macon and is a central point among the railroads in question.

From present appearances, and what could be learned from the railroad men, no change has taken place and probably there will be none.

ATHENS, Ga., January 20.—[Special.]—Athens is ATHENS, Ga., January 20.—[Special.]—Athens is in earnest as to the securing of a federal court at this place. She will send to the national capital three of her brainiest and most energetic citizens to see what can be done in the way of presenting her claims. Our citizens believe that the establishment of a federal court in this city is not only an act of justice to those citizens living far away from Atlanta among the mountains of northeast Georgia, but it will be of great benefit to this section and will serve to expedite trials and business in the court. Accordingly/ Messrs. Pope Brown, Alex S. Erwin and E. T. Brown will go to Washington to press Athens' claims. We know that we ought to secure the building and feel confident of success in obtaining it.

COLUMBUS, Ga., January 20 .- [Special.]-The story told by Mr. Richard Howard as to how the killing of Colonel Dawson came abou is one full of interest, and discloses conduct on the part of Dawson which palliates the act of his taking off. In his affidavit, Mr. Howard goes into the history of the case with great

It is quite lengthy and covers fully 3,000 words The affiant proceeds in detail to make a statement of the unfortunate family troubles which led up to the difficulty between the Howards

It alleges that in the year 1889, some time in ber of years subject to fits of insanity, was preg nant. I called upon her and asked ber who has ruined her. In reply, she told me, with some reluctance, that it was a certain gentleman.

I could not think so, and at once communi-cated with my sister, Mrs. Joseph, what Ruth had toldme. At the request of Mrs. Joseph I waited until she could have an interview with Ruth. Sometime afterwards, Mrs. Joseph told me that Ruth said it was not the gentleman she first said it was, but that it was Colbert Dawson. I at once sought Ruth and asked if it was Colbert Dawson. She at one replied that it was.

I then asked, "Why did you tell me it was the

We arrived at Glennville about 10 o'clock in the night, and stopped with Mr. Logan, our friend and also Colbert's. I asked that he (Logan) would go to Colbert Dawson's and tell him that I wanted to see him. After a short while, Logan came over with Dawson. I told Dawson of Ruth's condition and that Ruth said he had ruined her, that she had protected him (Dawson) as far as was possible and that at first she had shielded him at the sacrifice of truth; that in trying to shield him she had told me at first that another (giving to Dawson the name) had ruined her. ed her.

"Dawson replied that ha tion for the injury done me, my family, and my sister Ruth."
"Dawson replied that he was ready and willing to do all in his power to make reparation for what he had done. I then told him he must marry my sister, and do so at once. He then said that he was ready to marry Ruth, but thought that the marriage should not be at once, for people would wonder and it might become publicly known. He further suggested that Mrs. Joseph came in. He then suggested that we return home. He would follow us to Columbus, make several visits to sister and we could then announce the marriage. We then agreed for the marriage to take place in April, my sister and myself returned home, and the very next day Dawson came to Columbus, called to see my sister and made several visits to her before April. I thought, and had reason to believe, that he would consummate the marriage, and so I told him."

The affidavit goes on to state that Dawson did finally marry the girl in April and carried her to his home where in July a baby was born, which a few days afterward was reported dead, and affiant and his family had reason to think that it was foully dealt with.

Dawson subsequently separated from his wife, and gave as a reason that Ruth admitted that he was not the father of the child, Defendant had every reason to believe that the admission was obtained under duress and insisted on Dawson keeping his obligation, but he left her. I then sent for my sister and had her brought to Columbus. Her mental condition was deplorable. She was fully insane. After this she was duly committed to the asylum in this state, being sent from the county of Museogee. I then sent Dawson word that I hoped our paths in life would never cross.

word that I hoped our paths in line would never cross.

About September, 1890, my sister Ruth had teen returned from the asylum partially restored, and she had again become an innate of my mother's home. I then decided to prosecute both Dawson and Mrs. Griffith, as I thought my sister's mental condition would permit her to testify, the fact that she could not testify in the courts being the main reason why I did not start criminal prosecutions before. I did not start terminal prosecutions before. I did not start terminal prosecutions before. I did not start terminal prosecutions before. I did not start that I intended to prosecute them, and this was known by my friends in Columbus, and Russell county, Alabama.

to prosecute them, and this was known by my friends in Columbus, and Russell county, Alabama.

I heard from various sources after this that Dawson had threatened not only my life, but the lives of all my family. In addition to hearing these threats made by Dawson, all heard also that he was defaming the character of our sister Ruth, stating to various parties that she was of bad character, and admitting and boasting of having seduced her and having abandoned her after his marriage. I also had reason to believe that he knew the fact that I was going to prosecute him and his sister, and that to prevent this being done, he was preparing to force a difficulty between him and myself and other members of my family.

I also had heard that, only a few days before the 11th day of November, 1890, Dawson, while in Columbus, said that he was prepared for any emergency, and exhibited a pistol, stating that his friends would match the Howards any day. I was prepared to fink that he was seeking a difficulty with us, and would precipitate one if he ever met me or any member of my family.

On the day of the killing of Mr. Dawson, I was at the exposition grounds. I was on the inside of the ring immediately north of the main track, a little to the east of the judges' stand. I had walked about there, and was in there by permission of the badge that I bought that entitled me to all parts of the ground.

I was not among Mr. Dawson's associates or his friends, or his horse, or where I thought Mr. Dawson would come, unless it were to make an attack on my life.

At the close of the centlemen's roadsters' race,

I was not among Mr. Dawson's associates or his friends, or his horse, or where I thought Mr. Dawson would come, unless it were to make an attack on my life.

At the close of the gentlemen's roadsters' race, I was standing, at that time, due east of the judges' stand near my brother, Robert Howard. Dawson and Fletcher came out, Fletcher first and Dawson second of that heat.

They drove up, and as soon as they took up their horses they came back, saluted the judges and then drove again east, and I was surprised when about fifteen feet east of the judges' stand to see Dawson stop his horse quickly, get out of his cart and come under the railing. I say I was surprised from the fact that there were family troubles which Mr. Dawson was well 'aware of he knew of that led me to believe hereafter that they would be fully detailed, and that he would not willingly approach me unless he intended to take my life.

As he came under the railing and advanced towards us and in some five or six feet, I should say, of us, he was in the act of drawing a pistol—his right hand under his cost at his hip pocket, and his shoulder in motion, To my brother, who was standing a little to my left, I said: "Lookout," and before I could get the words out of my mouth, my brother sprang, he being at that time a little to my left. I would have drawn and fired right then believing my own life to be in danger had it not been for my brother springing forward, placing himself directly between Dawson and I. I did not know that he struck Dawson with a knife, as Dawson immediately wheeled north toward the bicycle track and there were two or three shots fired in rapid succession, and as soon as he cleared my brother, I commenced firing. He at the same time threw his pistol behind and fired. He continued to retreat in a circling position, firing once or twice, stopped, made a stand and fired, and I believed that my brother was shot up to that time; nor did I know Dawson was cut till I read the coroner's inquest. I fired until I had no balls in my pistol,

THE WIGWAM.

This Famous Hotel at Indian Springs Will be Completed About May 1st.

The Wigwam when completed will be one of the finest hotels in the south. It will have room for nnest notes in the south. It will have room for at least 1,000 guests, and every convenience that money can purchase will be had. The plumbing and gastitting is being done by Messrs. Guimarin, Ingles & Stockton, of this city. The fact that these gentlemen have the supervision of this work is a guarantee that it will be perfectly done. Yesterday a Constitution representative had a short talk with Mr. Dan Stockton. He is one of the most skilled plumbers and gasfitters in America. He has had years of experience in this business and knows it in every detail. He said yesterday:

"The Wigwam is going on all right. It will be one of the most elegant hotels in this country. I understand many of the rooms have been engaged for this summer. The fact that the water there possesses peculiar medicinal properties that few waters possess, assures a large attendance. Our firm is now rapidly at work putting in the plumbing and gasfitting apparatus. The Messrs, Collier, who own the Wigwam, have purchased the very best and most improved conveniences the very best and most improved conveniences in this line, and I firmly believe that there is no hotel in the whole country that will be better fitted up than the Wigwam.

⁴We secured this job in competition with some of the largest houses in the country, not because we were an old established institution, but be-cause all of us are skilled workmen and know our business thoroughly and do first-class work at easonable rates."

The fact that these gentlemen secured this job shows in what appreciation their work is held. They are also doing the plumbing and gasfitting for the Brosius Motor Sewing Machine Company. When it is known that this company own one of the largest factories in the south and that special pains must be taken in its gasfitting and plumbing, it will be seen that their giving the job to Mesers. Guimarin, lugles & Stockton is a great compliment to them, while at the same time it insures the Brosius Sewing Machine Company excellent work at reasonable rates. They also have several additional large orders which they are pushing rapidly. The fact that these gentlemen secured this job

SECOND-CLASS REDUCTION TO SOME TEXAS POINTS.

Other Matters of General Interest to Rail vention at Monterey, Cal.

The Southern Passenger Association has made a reduction on second-class tickets from Dalton, Ga., Rome, Ga., Chatta-nooga and Atlanta to Memphis, Tenn., the feeder for all points in Texas. This re-duction goes into effect on February 1st, and was made to meet a reduction by the Mem-phis and Charleston road between Chattanooga and Memphis, which also takes effect

The general passenger agents of all the roads in the United States, Canada and Mexico will hold a joint convention in Monterey, Cal., March 17th.

An afternoon sheet published in this city made a bad break Monday, by announcing a wreck on the Memphis and Charleston road, saying incidentally that the ties were so rotter one could kick them to pieces with his foot. The wreck occurred on the Macon and Cov-

Chattanooga boasts of a new bridge acro the Tennessee river. It is shortly to be opened for traffic. The entire length of the bridge is 2,370 feet. There are three spans of 210 feet each, three of 320 feet each, and 780 feet of

The engineers surveying the new route from Henderson, Ky., to Chattanooga, reached Livermore, Ky.—the Owensboro crossing of the Louisville and Nashville road-Friday night. Captain Genung, one of the projectors of the road, is following closely behind the engineer corps, and is meeting with great success in securing individual subscriptions and rights of way. The people all along the route are enthusiastic, and are going earnestly to work to further the new road's interests.

The Georgia Pacific train, which leaves Atlanta at 9:20 a. m., connects at Cramer Junction with a new train, just put on by the Chattanooga, Rom and Columbus road, for Rome, Chattanooga and the adjacent country.

The Southern Passenger Association has made a rate of one fare and a third from all points in its urisdiction to the convention of the Florida Baptist Association, which holds sessions at Pensacola from January 22d to 25th, inclusive.

The same rate has also been given the grand lodge, Free and Accepted Masons, of Tennessee, which convenes at Nashville, January 26th to 31st, inclusive.

Brunswick, from all indications, is greatly blessed in the matter of facilities for freight and passenger transportation, as the Brunswick and Western railroad, with its new rails, new road-bed and new rolling stock, is making a first-class record in both branches of business.

It is expected that by the 1st of February, Albany will have another railroad outlet. On that date the completion of the Albany and Cordele road is looked for, which will start trains running between the two towns.

Notes of the Rail.

The Central Railroad of Georgia, Savannah and western division has adopted the whistle signals on passenger trains in place of the old-time bell cord. The whistle signal has now been adopted by all the leading roads in the country, and is a great improvement on the bell cord. Every road ntering Birmingham now uses the whistle

Colonel F. S. Glimore, recently deposed from the general northern passenger agency of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia at Chicago, is to be taken care of at Cincinnati on the Queen and Crescent.

The property of the Augusta, Tallahassee and Gulf railroad has been purchased by parties who have organized the Carrabelle, Tallahassee and Georgia Railroad Company, with W. K. Clare, of New York; J. T. Barnard and L. D. Ball, of Tallahassee; J. C. Hodge, of Sopchoppy, and O. H. Kelley, of Carrabelle, directors. The road is built a distance of eleven miles, and the new company proposes completing it to the Georgia state line. The capital stock is $1,000,000.

A Nashville dispatch says that a lively row is now in progress between the Nashville, Chattanoga and St. Louis railway and the Nashville and Knoxville for the right of way from Cookeville across the mountains to the Cincinnati Southern. The Nashville and Knoxville now extends from Lebanon to Cookeville, and the Nashville and Knoxville, but they were rejected. Walker's Pass, it is said, is five miles long and only wide enough for one road. Both roads have surveyed it, and Thursday night, learning that the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis people had secured the right-of-way, the Nashville, and knoxville and Knoxville people started a gang of men to the pass. The Nashville chattanooga and St. Louis gangs were also sent out from Cookeville, and, reaching the pass at midnight, took possession and broke ground. They are now guarding the pass It is alleged that the Nashville chattanooga and St. Louis movement is to compel the Nashville and Knoxville people to sell out.

THE SUNDAY CONSTITUTION SENT TO ANY ADDRESS.

ATLANTA, GA., JANUARY 21, 1891.

How's This for High?

Our esteemed evening contemporary thus expresses itself: We note that THE CONSTITUTION also owns two perfecting presses, and we learn that these presses can be seen side by side in THE CONSTITUTION'S

We earnestly hope the time will come when THE Constitution's growth will require that both presses be run at the same time every day and that the people will be able to see them be at work on The Daily Constitution.

What's the use in running both of our presses, when either one of them will do twice as much work as any other one press in the south?

They are both there, either ready to turn at a moment's notice, and it often happens that two hours before the paper goes to press the pressman does not know which machine he will be instructed to use.

But here are some interesting figures from the representative of the firm that made both of THE CONSTITUTION'S presses, and likewise those of our evening contemporary. Mr. Oscar Roesen, one of Hoe's most experi foremen, who has just completed the final adjustment of our new press, says:

EDITOR CONSTITUTION: THE CONSTITUTION'S new press is inadvertently done an injustice in the statement in yesterday's paper that it would print 30,000 four-page papers per hour, thou several times that it would print 48,000 such papers an hor 5,000 such papers an hour.

The exact capacity of THE CONSTITUTION'S new and it will not vary five papers, more ess, from this—is:

Ninety-six thousand two-page papers per hour.
Forty-eight thousand four-page papers per

Twenty-four thousand six or eight page papers per hour.

Twelve thousand twelve or sixteen page papers

In addition to this, the press cuts, folds, pastes counts and distributes the papers, and handles a sixteen-page paper with as much ease as it does one of four pages.

This is the finest press ever sent to the south, and This is the linest press ever sent to the south, and its capacity is more than twice as great as that of any other press in this section. It is an exact duplicate of the presses of The New York World, Philadelphia Press and other great newspapers.

OSCAR ROESEN,

Foreman Hoe Press Establishm One of THE CONSTITUTION'S presses has its hands full with the weekly and the other with the daily, but whenever necessary they can exchange courtesies with the utmost ease. Nevertheless, the prosperity of others is gratifying.

A Strange Mystery.

The reported death in an Arizona desert of Doc Wilson, of Rhode Island, recalls an old mystery that has puzzled New England many years.

Wilson lived in abject poverty until he reached manhood. He was very ignorant, and was apparently helpless and friendless. Suddenly he began to occasionally visit Philip Moen, a wealthy manufacturer of Worcester, Mass. He obtained large sums from Moen, and spent money lavishly, building a fine hotel, and marrying a beautiful woman. For years he lived like a rich man. Whenever he wanted money he drew on Moen.

Finally Moen kicked, and Wilson sued him, claiming that he was his son and the rightful owner of his patent barbed wire fence. Wilson lost the suit, and his wife obtained a divorce from him. After this the fellow became a wanderer, until he died of cold and starvation in Arizona, a few weeks ago.

The mystery will probably remain one forever. This common tramp who made a millionaire do his bidding for years, and supply him with several fortunes, must have known some secret of Moen's life of a very scandalous or criminal nature. He was evidently a blackmailer, strong-willed and unscrupulous. It is not likely that he told the truth in his suit. That was a mere bluff, and the real secret was held back with the hope of extorting more money. But the facts will never come out. Wilson is dead, and Moen will not talk.

The Two Canals.

While the proposition is pending to have our government guarantee the interest on the Nicaragua Canal Company's bonds, it will be of interest to note the effect of the scheme in Europe.

M. Monchicourt, the liquidator of the Panama Canal Company, will soon take hold of the enterprise and push it forward to completion before the Nicaragua canal can be finished. He thinks that the better plan would be for the governments of the United States and France to unite and construct the Panama canal. If this is not done, he predicts that the Nicaragua enterprise will lag behind the other, which is nearly completed.

It will strike most people that the Frenchman claims too much. According to the best evidence, the Panama canal is not nearly completed. The surface of the isthmus is merely scratched, and the suspension of work has ruined some of the machinery, and has caused the excavations to be partly filled up again. Then the engineering difficulties in the way will cause a much larger outlay of money than will be required for the Nicaragua route.

There is another reason why our government does not feel disposed to join France in the Panama project. The French government proposes to raise funds through the medium of a lottery. Our government, on the other hand, is doing all it can to suppress lotteries. Under the circumstances we cannot consistently go into partnership with the biggest wheel of fortune that has been seen in the present generation.

If the French government is going into the lottery business to complete its big ditch, it will have to do so without an American partner. But, apart from this objection, it would be bad policy for this republic to consent to even partial European mation of the isthmus. Our commercial interests will force us, sooner or later, to control that strip of territory, and no matter who constructs a canal between the two oceans, the United States will find it necessary to take charge of it. Viewed from every standpoint, it is impossible to think of any state of affairs that would make it advisable for us to take hold of the ill-fated Panama ditch with the visionary Frenchmen who have already sunk too much money in it.

Why They Get Drunk,

The Chicago Herald continues from day to day to publish the fact that liquor is being used to fire the fanaticism of Hoar's associates in their struggle to pass the force

It has been found that the republican senators in their sober moments show very little zeal and energy in fighting for this infamous measure. They know that the bill has for its object the destruction of free government. It is intended to give a republican administration the power to re-elect itself. The whole business is odious, and require a disloyal conspiracy to put it through.

So some of these faint-hearted senator who are unwillingly yielding to the party lash try to absorb a little Dutch courage by getting drunk. Under the circumstances, their conduct is perfectly natural. Sobel men, unless they are very malignant partisans, would not work with all their might day after day to put a bayonet behind every black ballot in the vain hope of establishing negro domination in the south.

It takes madmen or drunken men to en gage in such work. To the outside world berly looking on, the senators who are straining every nerve to make the force bill a law have all the appearance of men who are both mad and drunk.

It Was a Rich Man's Panic. It is safe enough now to pass judgmen upon the recent panic.

The flurry was confined to the financial world-to Wall street, and other money centers. It was a panic among speculators and money lenders. The people generally were not touched by it, although many for a time gave way to timid fears.

The general run of business has been good all the time. But people with money felt alarmed and refused to lend under any condition. They locked up their funds, and by their cautious conduct caused a scare to run throughout the land. When people had time to think the matter over, and survey the situation, they saw that there was really no ground for a panic, Especially is this true of the south. In this section the people are gradually getting out of debt; they are rapidly developing their material resources; new capital is seeking investments, and the outlook is promising

It will be said that money is scarce. So it was a year ago, and so it will be a year hence, unless the volume of currency is expanded to meet the demands of business. Money has not suddenly disappeared. We have simply opened our eyes to the fact that our per capita circulation is too small, and that when the crops are to be moved there is a greater demand for ready eash.

So far as the people are concerned, there is no panic. The scarcity of money is a normal condition under our present financial system, and there can be no marked change for the better until we expand the currency and get rid of the most oppressive features of the national banking system. This reform is bound to come sooner or later.

Against the Conger Lard Bill. The bankers and commercial men of Atlanta have forwarded to Senator Colquitt a protest against the Conger lard bill, accom panied by a letter requesting him to use his influence against the measure. We are glad to see the bankers taking an interest in a only the farmers and the manufacturers matter which might be supposed to affect cotton seed oil. They perceive, however, that any measure which cripples or destroys this new industry, will seriously affect a great many other interests-the whole south. In their protest the bankers call attention to the fact that although the manufacture of cotton seed oil is a new industry, which may be said to have barely passed the experimenta stage, it has asked no protection from the government, depending alone on individual energy and enterprise; and yet it has already become an important factor in the industrial development of the south, and of the whole country. It not only uses a product of the cotton plant that has heretofore practically gone to waste, but it has given to the world another pure food product both cheap and wholesome.

The new industry has added to the diversity of occupation and employment, has given to the southern farmers, both white and black, a new and profitable market for their cotton seed, and is properly regarded as one of the most important devolopments of the present industrial era.

We have already shown in these columns the animus and intention of the Conger lard bill. It is not in the interest of pure food, although some of the western farmers have been deceived into believing that it is. It will not add a thousandth part of a cent to the value of the western hog. It is purely and simply an effort on the part of bribed and subsidized congressmen to legislate against the production of cotton seed oil in the interest of a combination of lardmakers. A wholesome food product is to be legislated out of the market in order that the people may be compelled to pay more for an unwholesome food product. The Conger lard bill looks to class legislation in behalf of a

That the bill is wholly vicious every sen sible man knows. It has already had the effect of depressing the cotton seed oil industry and will seriously cripple it if passed by the senate. Already the amount of raw material used in Atlanta alone has been reduced from 40,000 tons in 1889 to 30,000 tons in 1890. This reduction has been due wholly to the fact that the bill is pending. The result of its passage will be very serious.

The lives and speeches of these distinguished southern leaders must be studied in order to thoroughly understand the true position of the south when she seceded from the union. The whole matter of secession is much misunderstood, and the motives of southern people in setting up a separate govern ment have long been misjudged. FRISKET FLAPS.

Editor Knowles, of The Greensboro Herald Journal, was in the city yesterday.

A number of Georgia editors are advocating banks for their towns. Their sanctums are getting too small to accommodate their cash.

Many improvements are noticeable in Georgia newspapers. For instance, Editor Under-wood has added a new farm to his business; Editor Gunn a boarding house; Editor Clarke a real estate agency; Editor Hanlon a patent collecting machine (double-barrelled shotgur presumably); Editor Rucker a poet's corne (in the cemetery); Editor Perry is mayor of Canton; Editor McNeeley has discovered a a gold mine, and Editor Steadman a bedstead which will accommodate his length

STANFORD'S SCHEME

FOR GOVERNMENT LOANS ON LAND

The Senator Interviewed by George Alfred Townsend-The Lack of Money in the Country.

In an interview with George Alfred Town end, Senator Leland Stanford outlines his cheme for government loans upon land at 2 per cent interest.

It is an interesting coincidence that the Stanford boom for the presidency began simultaneously with the appearance of the 2 per cent land loan plank in the Farmers' Alliance platform. It is also interesting to ob-serve that the western wing of the alliance put it there over the protest of the more conservative southern element. The west is staggering under a load of land mortnator Stanford knows it. When he put forward his bill, that trouble was more talked of among the western farmers than all the issues they have since debated and agi tated the country upon. The land loan idea was opposed in the Ocala convention by southern members on the ground that it would not give a flexible currency, which would appear and disappear with the crops, adjusting itself automatically to their volume. This idea of a currency automatically flexible was the distinctive feature of alliance principles, the one which was claimed by alliance leaders to be the greatest discovery in the science the greatest discovery in the science of political economy since the days of Adam Smith. Dr. Macune at Ocala stated positively that the land loan idea was in no sense a substitute for the subtreasury scheme.

Now that both measures will come before congress for serious discussion, it will be interesting to hear what Senator Stanford has to say for his scheme.

SENATOR STANFORD'S SCHEME. "I amended the title of my bill recently: 'A bill to enable the United States to circulate its money," said he. "You know there must be a consideration for putting money out; the government is as poor as the poorest man to do therwise. That was the disability of the greenbackers; after the money was printed there was nothing to exchange it for. We buy silver and coin it, but the government will not accept any consideration which the ment will not accept any consideration which the people have to offer except the bonds. Ninety per cent of their face is accepted, and to that extent currency is issued. But 3 per cent of the extent currency is issued. But 3 per cent of the exchanges of the country are represented by money; the rest by drafts, bills, checks. Hence, 3 per cent stringency or panic doubles the want of money; a rush for money to that percentage puts it out of the reach of all but a few. A failure to find $100,000,000 by the Barings nearly breaks Europe and America. This cannot be a secure civilization if such a remote, little cause affects the nations.

"But why have not other nations, with longe "But why have not other nations, with longer experience, entertained the same thought?"
"That reflection made me hesitate so long—why have they not? I said. But their functions are not altogether like ours; they stop with the state, as a debtor or creditor. The welfare of their people has been but an incidental part of their people has been but an incidental part of their pointy. In the last century they have done many things which were extreme innovations—sold lands to their serfs on long time by state assistance; abolished feudality, etc. Here we are discharging the debt, the basis of the currency of above a quarter of a century, and providing no other basis. Mr. Mills told me that the coining of all our silver product would do a coining of all our silver product would do great deal of harm. I fail to see it. If debt was a good basis of money, silver coin cannot be very dangerous."

"The point is made that you must put more grains in your silver dollar?"
"Yes, Senator Blair made that point with me. I took out a silver dollar and asked him what it I took out a silver dollar and asked him what i was worth. He said about 73 cents. Said I, Blair I will give you 99½ cents per dollar for 100,000 lik this one, and then I will duplicate the order.' He said that the government had made it safe for me to make that offer. 'Yes,' said I, 'and that is all which gives any kind of money the money that the said I. which gives any kind of money the money that the said I. which gives any kind of money the money that the said I. which gives any kind of money the money that the said I. which gives any kind of money the money that the said I. which gives any kind of money the money that the said I. when I was the said I. when I was the said I was the

"Then, governor, why waste the silver to stamp tt?"

"As I have said, there must be a consideration if Mr. Astor had $100,000,000 of real estate and borrowed to the full amount of it it would probably depreciate, but to say that a state of things might arise where he could not borrow $100,000 in money upon his well-known wealth would be trelate an extreme case of what has lately happened You can only borrow money now in New York on call, and it has ranged near about 20 per cent Long loans you could not get at all, such as the state of society expects. Now the farmer has the best security and can borrow the least upon it. He generally borrows from outside men, whose rate is generally and can corrow the least upon it. It generally borrows from outside men, whose rate determined by how had he wants the money."

"Why are the banks hostile to silver?"
"Because it comes in direct competition with their currency, being the people's money, as gold does not." "It is argued that gold will leave the country if "It is argued that gold will leave the country it we coin so much silver."

"Where is this gold which is to leave us? I have not seen in months in the east a gold piece. If a treasury note, a silver dollar and a gold dollar were placed before you to choose, I suppose you would take the note first, the silver dollar next and the gold piece last; even a five-dollar gold piece, which would run the risk of being passed of material of a silver quarter, is seldom hoarded. off instead of a silver quarter, is seldom hoarded. As in France, the money for the pocket and the stockings is silver. That hoarded silver went up to the relief of the French government and discharged the vast debt to Germany. Predictions were long ago made that to increase the silver coinage would expel all the gold; we have increased the purchase of silver till it amounts within a fraction of the whole silver yield of our mines and nothing has ensued like the predictions. I regard the subject as of little or no real hazard. In 1873 we were producing more silver than ever before or since, and no apprehensions were expressed. The country, I am satisfied, has not money enough, and that was the voice of the late elections."

"Do you find plenty of authority for this posi-

"Do you find plenty of authority for this posi-"Yes. In Franklin's works I find that the whole "Yes. In Franklin's works I find that the whole question of advancing the public credit was gone over in the history of Pennsylvania, and he maintained that money was the stamp, not the medium, as had to be the case in barbaric times, where faith was unknown between different races, and the metallic medium only was in vogue. Money merely exercises the value of something, and the nearest you can get to the real value is labor, which it is not easy to represent; land is the next thing that I can think of."

The senator illustrated this in various ways, as by a man with a wagon and a horse; the horse dies, and the man and the wagon are displaced from earning unless somebody will lend him the money to replace his horse.

"Suppose the land should return upon the state?"

from earning unless somebody will lend him the money to replace his horse.

"Suppose the land should return upon the state?"

"That is not possible under the conditions of my bill. Public advertisement must be made of the assessed value of the land; if it is assessed too high that will be a matter of information, and correction will follow. Another purchaser will come forward for land sacrificed at 2 per cent only on half its value, or 1 per cent—in fact, $1 on $100."

Among the illustrations Governor Stanford gave was that of Smith and Alexander Mitchell, in Wisconsin, before the day of national banks.

"I lived there with my wife before going to California, the scarcest of all thing was money. A person with $3,000 was considered rich, and $200 a year provided for a family when eggs were 4 cents a dozen and hams 2 or 3 cents a pound. To meet the desire of currency money Smith, of Chicago, and Mitchell, of Wisconsin, procured a charter for a fire and marine insurance company, coupled with which was some kind of privilege, or stretch of authority, to issue scrip. They floated $3,000,000 of it. I suppose it was illegal, for almost every attorney general began suit against them, yet so needful was currency of some kind that the people sustained the money, and every suit mad to be dropped for the impossibility of enforcing the law against the public want. There were $3,000,000 absorbed, upon no foundation of realty, and still there came no financial crash. Money is the medium requisite to equalize an exchange of values; nothing else will serve."

"The tradesman cannot borrow unless be has land under youf bill?"

"He is not like the farmer. He turns his stock every sixty days, or six times a year. The farmer, whose entire production amounts to $1,000 to $2,000 a year, often stands in need of money without the means of getting it under the present system. With $1,000 in money to be laborerer could be employed one day, and if their product to there is relative stagnation.

"No," said the governor, "the annual silver y

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

The Proposed University Club. Epitor Constitution: I was very much pleased it a writer's suggestion in The Constitution some days ago to establish an University club among us. Such clubs succeed well elsewhere and are the sources of no inconsiderable pleasure and profit to all their members. For example, among the great multitude of social organizations in New York city there is not one that offers greater social and intellectual advantages than the University club, numbering, as it does, a great part of the highest intellectual talent of the city. What New York thus does on a large scale we can certainly do on a smaller, and by all means let's have the University club.

I will not elaborate on the advisability of organizing the club—its advantages are obvious.

This communication is intended only to keep the matter alive. The Constitution, I am sure, will encourage the good work.

A Good Suggestion. EDITOR CONSTITUTION: It would, doubtless, be gratifying to the public and quicken the interest taken in our national affairs-aside from th wholesome stimulus that it would afford the con-cestants—for THE CONSTITUTION to suggest, or request the literary societies of our colleges and the debating clubs of our cities and towns, to enter into a discussion of the "Behring's Seal Fishery" question that is now agitating political circles on both sides of the Atlantic, and may possibly precipi tate a collision between two of the most important governments in christendom. of Mercer and Oxford set the ball in motion, and other societies of less fame, but perhaps of no less ability, follow suit, and furnish the names of the contestants and a brief outline of the interesting features of the discussion to THE CONSTITUTION for publication.

The basis of argument, on either side, is before the country in the official correspondence between Secretary Blaine and Lord Salisbury. It would also be an interesting picture if, after the decision of the presiding officer of each discussion on the merits of arguments adduced, a vote of the audience was taken to ascertain to what extent the people endorse the policy of the American secretary, and how many favor the position of the British premier.

It is perhaps needless to say that such discussion would provoke investigation and develop new ideas among all classes on international affairs and prove instructive generally.

IN THE HANDS OF A COMMITTEE. The establishment of a southern university was decided upon at the last annual confer-

Michigan, and Sharman, of North Carolina. The committe has taken no action vet, but quite a number of bids for the site have been submitted. Tennessee, in which state the denomination is quite strong, is an active bidder. Graysville, Tenn., has offered considerable inducements. Alpharetta and Marietta, Ga., have also bid

I beg to correct some mistatements as regards this company, of which I became secretary October 8, 1890, by becoming a shareholder in the company. I was informed at the time that all persons pany. I was informed at the time that all persons connected with the company were to purchase stock of the company. So all the agents were instructed to organize societies with that stated among our people, to be known as African emigrants to go to Africa, the land of our ancestors. They were to pay $\frac{3}{2}$ as a guarantee of their good intentions, the dollar to be accredited to their passage, minus $15$ cents for incidental expenses. Judge R. S. Tharin, of this city, was to receive a subsidy for the company, or, in other words, secure a subsidy on each dollar to the company or.

ited to their passage, minus 15 cents for incidental expenses. Judge R. S. Tharin, of this city, was to receive a subsidy for the company, or, in other words, secure a subsidy on each dollar put in by applicants to cover the remainder of the passage money. Also, he was to secure by subsidy $30,000 needed to start the scheme, together with the sale of company stocks in $100 shares, the money to go in bank only to be used in transporting society members to Africa, and all moneys thus realized are in bank today. As far as I am aware, there is no delusion being practiced, and just as soon as subsidy is raised, or $30,000, the people will sall, and our corporation counsel, Judge Tharin, is now negotiating for us and says it will succeed, notwithstanding false rumors to the contrary. The company did not authorize its agents nor any one else to demoralize labor. but to organize with a view at some subsequent time to go to Africa—not this year, next year, nor this month, nor next month; but all depended on the sale of stock, subsidy and $30,000, together with membership fees, and when raised all members would have due notice and everything work in a systematic way, not pell mell as the Georgia papers seem to give it. If some one has been indiscrect and inaccurate in giving the information the company is not to blame. I am a new member in the company, and I neverunderstood that $1 was the absolute passage to Africa. I understood it to be subsidized by the sale of stock, etc., and no one is being duped as far as I am aware, though the money don't pass through my hands, but I know of every dollar that has been received, and know it is on deposit in the bank. Every one who has paid money, if they are displeased, can return their receipts and get their dollar, for there is no desire to wrongfully hold it. The company will sometime secure a subsidy, the $30,000 and passengers, too, despite opposition and Judases.

Judases.

I beg you in fairness to the company to publish this short and disjointed letter, hoping that the truth may be gleaned from it, as the company don't wish to cover up its acts, for they are legitimate and can stand scrutiny. Yours very truly, THOMAS J. CLAYTON, Secretary United States and Congo National Emigration Steamship Company.

Clayton Forgets. The burden of that seems to be that the company's agents made all their promises without the authority of the officers. But his claims do not seem to be sustained by the facts. He says, for instance, "I am a new member of the company, and I never understood that $1 was the absolute passage to Africa."

Clayton forgets.
George Thrasher brought to THE CONSTI-

"A Parlor Match" Tonight.

Fun! Fun!! Fun!!! This word of three let? ters explains what is the "Parlor Match." It is the essence of merriment and of wit, which keeps the awdience laughing and roaring for two and a half hours. It is impossible to imagine a more pleasing comedy, and especially a better company than the one headed by Evans and Hoey, which is, aft support of such stars. These two comedians have no equals on the American stage, and they are certainly geniuses in their line. The New York Sun said of the performance:

The expected "tidal wave of merriment" arrived at the Grand opera house last evening in the character of Evans & Hoey's Meteors, presenting Charles Hoyt's latest successful absurdity, "A Parlor Match." From the rising of the curtaint of the going down thereof after the third act, the large audience present were kept running over with laughter, which bubbled and rippied like the uncontrollable current of an impetuous mountain stream. And why? Very, few could tell after leaving. True, there was the inimitable Evans, an ideal book agent, with the equally excellent Old Hoss, in the person of William Hoey, and Miss Minnie French as Innocent Kidd; but it was simply a series of flashes of fun that came and went so quick that you laughed and applauded, then wondered why a minute atterward. The "Parlor Match" is a medley of healthy humor, song and comical situations strung together so as to bring out in the three acts the specialties of the various people taking part. A seance is held, and from the cabinet come forth the spirits of departed friends in the persons of the members of the company, introducing song and dance, with side hits and comicallities, by Messrs. Evans and Hoey. The audience was large and enjoyed fine exceedingly, and that tells the story withers more ado.

A regular secret fraternity has sprung up.
One of the elect, whose regard for the binding power of his oath of secrecy is rather flexible, gave away some of the things that transpired in last night's Meeting to a Constitution reporter. From what he tells, it seems that the meeting was called together to get a hearing from Orange Davis, the treasurer of the emigration scheme.
Davis was on hand and made a partial showing. He said he had paid $1,000 to the steamship people in Washington.

Five hundred dollars of this, he said, he paid while he was in Washington some time ago, and the other five hundred he had deposited in a Washington bank, to be drawn out by the company when the ship was ready to start.

When that time came, he was to telegraph to this bank to have the second $500 paid over to the steamship company. He said that he had left Atlanta on Christmas Day, reaching here December 28th. The meeting only lasted long enough for Davis to make his statement.

EDITOR CONSTITUTION: We have seen several articles lately in The Atlanta Evening Journal written by the handsome(?) idler of walking-match fame. His articles are as far from being true as his pedestrianism was a success. To start with, he states that the ordinance making it unlawful to run unhaltered mules through the treets of Atlanta between the hours of 8 o'clock and 9 o'clock a.m., and 2 o'clock and 3 o'clock a.m., and 2 o'clock and 5 o'clock p.m., is overrun and that they go pell mell and helter skelter through the principal streets at all hours. If that is true (which it is not) it is, to say the least of it, pretty tough on Chief Connolly and his force of efficient poice. The law is strictly adherred to, and even if by chance a stableman varies five minutes from the time he is promptly arrested; and ex-Recorder Anderson will testify and the records at the stationhouse will show that all offenders were fined. Now if the aforementioned handsome(?) fat Idler will show in the history of Atlanta, where a single person—white or black—old or young—male or female—ever received personal injuries by being run overby a loose mule in a drove while being carried from any of the different stables to the shipping pens, then we will cease our argument, and say stop the nule nuisance. Can this be said of incorporations, viz.: street cars, dummies, engines or electric cars? He also refers to Macon as a city Cards are out for the marriage of Mr. John Jentzen and Miss Nellie Schikan, Tuesday, January 27th. Mr. Jentzen is a popular young business man, and Miss Neillie is the charming daugh ter of Mr. and Mrs. John Schikan. The wedding will occur at their residence, No. 138 Mitchell street.

QUITMAN, Ga., January 20 .- [Special.]-Dr. E. H. Jelks and Miss Janie Sinclair were married this morning at 10 o'clock. The bridegroom is a most prominent physician of this city, and the bride one of the loveliest daughters of Brooks county, and a general favorite.

Mr. and Mrs. Marks, of Clifton, S. C., are visit-ing relatives, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Johnson, 123 West Fair street.

Dr. Arthur S. Bridwell, accompanied by his lovely and accomplished wife, leaves tonight for Augusta, to attend the carnival. The Installment Plan .- "Did you ever hear of a or electric cars? He also refers to Macon as a city with laws, and good ones, as regards the running of mules through the streets. But Macon is only a retail market, handling a number of mules that is, comparatively speaking, only a drop in the bucket compared with Atlanta. St. Louis is the largest stock market in the world, and as to population, "we think some larger than Macon." The fathers of that city allow the running of mules through the streets. Also Louisville, Ky, Lexington, Ky, and, in fact, every city that enjoys the reputation of a wholesale stock market. We would now, Mr. Editor, like to call the attention of the Atlanta-loving people of our city to a few benefits drived from our stock trade. Atlanta, as is well known, stands almost equal to St. Louis as a stock market. Over three and one-half millions of man buying a coffin on the installment plan?" asked Undertaker Frank Bliley yesterday. "No."

"Well, I have a customer of that sort now. He has had his measure taken and is paying for his coffin, so that it will be ready when he dies."

"That's queer."

"Yes; but it is not without precedent. I had one of that sort before. He paid for his coffin, the use of the hearse and the carriages, in the same way. He said he did not want any sharks troubling his wife after he was dead.

"Just about the time he finished paying for it he died and had the satisfaction of being buried with the expenses prepaid."

ple of our city to a few benefits drived from our stock trade. Atlanta, as is well known, stands almost equal to St. Louis as a stock market. Over three and one-half millions of dollars' worth of mules were sold here last year, and this year bids fair to overreach the trade of last. There are between 2,500 and 3,000 mules and horses on the market at present—say 115 carloads. These mules are attended by their owners from Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri, Indiana, Kausas and other western states. If a law is passed prohibiting the running of mules through the streets it will eventually kill Atlanta as the largest southern stock market, as it did Nashville several years ago. Do you not think it will injure Atlanta? Ask the grain merchants, who are paid hundreds of thousands of dollars annually. Ask the bonkers, who are paid thousands of dollars for exchange annually. Ask the hotel and restaurant proprietors, the grocery men, the clothing men—in fact every business man in Atlanta, even down to the humble bootblack, if the stock men are a benefit to them or not.

These are a few, Mr. Idler, who are personally interested. As to tying them together, that is a matter of impossibility, because a great many of them are young and green and if they were broken it would be impossible to handle the vast numbers that come on every train. As to Mr. Idler's suggestion as to running between "two suns," I will also state that the schedules of the trains that bring the mules into the city and carry them out to be retailed in every city in Georgia, the Carolinas, Alabama and Florida also makes that impossible. We are satisfied with the members of the city council and are willing to leave the matter with them.

The meeting is held every year, according to the law of the church, for the purpose of planning the work and dividing up the assessments.

North Atlanta conference comprises the counties of Fuiton, Cobb, Douglas and Cherokee, which are divided into twenty pastorial charges, in which are included fifty churches with an aggregate membership of 20,000.

Among these churches are included the First church, Grace chapel, Fayne's chapel, Edgewood and Bishop Hendrix mission.

The last annual conference assessed the conference about $10,000, and when it came to the apportionment yesterday there was a good deal of emulation among the stewards as to who should share largest in the burdens.

The First church, being the strongest and being renowned for its liberality and promptitude in meeting every obligation, claimed the largest share, and took upon itself nearly a third of the burden.

There is a steward for each charge, and there share, and took upon itself nearly a third of the burden.

There is a steward for each charge, and there was a full representation, Rev. Dr. J. W. Heidt, presiding elder, occupying the chair, and Mr. J. C. Hendrix having been chosen secretary.

The fixing of the salary of the presiding elder was one of the duties of this meeting, and it was put at the customary figure.

The assessments for home and foreign missions, bishop's fund, fund for superannuated preachers, widows and orphans of deceased ministers and for church extension, were all arranged.

The reports from all the stewards were very encouraging, and the outlook for the coming year is bright indeed. The pastors have all got down to work and the people are rallying to their support, and north Atlanta has never enjoyed a better season of religous revival work than this year promises to be.

THE NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, January 20 .- In the stock market the bulls seem to be discouraged over the situation of financial legislation at Washington, and declare that if the representatives of the farmers of the country are buils seem to be discoulaged to a financial legislation at Washington, and declare that if the representatives of the farmers of the country are to manage its finances, business will be kept in an unsettled condition. The market today was very dull and featureless, trading being left almost entirely in the hands of room traders, who, being bearish, hammered stocks during the forenoon, and later tried to cover short sales. The result of the day's business is to leave all stocks within slight fractions of last night's figures. The pressure seemed to be principally upon Industrials which were so strong yesterday, and Union Practific and Chicago Gas and Laclede Gas were forced off oper 1 per cent. In early trading, after an irregular opening, when the pressure was removed, however, extreme duliness settled over the market and was never lifted during the remainder of the day, while prices under absence of selling and limited demand from shorts slowly crept upward and by the close, which was dull and firm, early losses were in almost prices under absence of selling and limited demand from shorts slowly crept upward and by the close, which was dull and firm, early losses were in almost all cases about covered. Some little animation in Union Pacific, New England, Grangers and Industrials relieved the monotony, but dealings were otherwise entirely devoid of interest. Final changes are irregu-lar with not a single one of note. The sales of the day amounted to: Listed, 122,000 shares; unlisted, 17,000

NEW YORK, January 20.—Our market has been dull with limited fluctuations and few features. There is a general disposition to await the result of the silver legislation before risking new adventures. We fear this state of affairs will prevail until that momentous question is settled. The undertone of the market is firm and the general situation is considerably helped by the marked case of the money market. Time money by the marked case of the money market. Time money is being offered freely at 5 per cent for the first time in many months. When the first of February has passed and the money market is relieved from the feeling of nervousness consequent upon the withdrawal of imported merchandise from the public stores, we think that money will be still easier and this will give the bond market, at least, considerable impetus. Under the circumstances, while we may have a short period of duliness, we have no reason to anticipate a setback of moment. The market railled shortly before the close on some covering of shorts and closed at the best prices of the day.

over 1,000 bales, Atlanta 1,400 bales and Nashville for one day 600 bales. Estimates of the receipts at New Orleans for tomorrow are 10,000 bales; and, while the market has the appearance of reacting, the movement of the crop continues to point to fully 8,000,000 bales, and without snoorraging advices from Manchester a dragging market may be expected after the reaction for which the trade are looking.

NEW YORK, January 20.—Our market today has been very dull at nominal fluctuations. Liverpool came easier and prices here were a point or two lower, but in the absence of orderings held steady throughout until the close. Our Manchester cables say the market is dull for nearly all fabrics. We notice a slightly better feeling in textiles, but it only amounts to histhat goods can be moved, while a little while back there was really no outlet to speak out, prices are not quotably improved. Receipts are fair, and we look for a steady movement hereafter. Our view of the situation is generally unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, January 20.—From the decided depression at the opening of the wheat market it recovered a little in the first hour's trading and gained a good deal later on. The price for May declined to 30c in the first few minutes and closed at 34/sc, sellers, against first few minutes and closed at 94%c, sellers, against 93%c on the previous afternoon.

Trading in corn at the opening was indicative of some protest against any farther following in the footsteps of the declining wheat market, and when wheat began to recover some bullishness in its tone, the advance in corn was very sudden and decided. May rose to 51%c and closed at 51%c.

The onts market was bullish from the start.

Heavy selling in provisions depressed prices at the opening, but the stiffening up of the grain markets created a reaction, and there was an advance.

The leading futures ranged as follows in Chicago today.

CHICAGO, January 20 .- This morning the weather CHICAGO, January 20.—This morning the weather map displays most delightful weather throughout the entire United States, the thermometer standing at about 36 in the extreme south from Atlanta to the northern part of Dakota. There has been no occasion for going south to seek a mild climate this winter so far. At the opening of the market everything seemed to favor the bears and they were looking for a clear coast and fair sailing. Liverpool cables were a shade far. At the opening of the market everything seemed to favor the bears and there were looking for a clear coast and fair sailing. Liverpool cables were a shade lower and there were some rumors of more bank troubles in Kansas City, which caused a weak opening, but soon after it became evident that there was very little wheat for sale. A few weaks sold out, and those who were oblighed to sell found ready buyers at the decline, and the market gradually advanced to the close, closing a shade higher than yesterday. Reports of extremely bad weather and damage to crops came from the continent, also a report of dry weather on the Pacific coast and light growth of California wheat. Sales of No. 2 red in New York were made at 3 cents above May delivery, also a few sales of No. 2 spot wheat in Milwaukee at about the May price, which shows the strength in wheat is caused by the demand for wheat, and the outlook seems quite favorable to holders. The demand for carlois of corn was very active and the trading in futures for May was equite active at times, some large lots changing hands. The market closed fully I cent higher than yesterday. The trading in May oats was quite large, one house siling about a half million at 45, which had no perceptible effect on the market. It was quickly absorbed and the market continued to advance up to the close. Hog products seemed to be the weakest on the board, but the decline on the opening was all recovered and the close finds the market a shade higher than yesterday. On the whole the bulls are feeling quite comfortable tonight.

Ousley v. Central Railroad Company. Railroads. Master and servant. Before Judge Jenkins. Wilkinson superior court.

Bleckley, C. J.—1. Where the evidence shows that a draw-bar supplied by a railway company to be used in coupling cars was used on two occasions, working well on the first, but failing to work on the second, though twice tried in a proper manner, a jury might, in the absence of any explanation from the company, infer that the implement was defective.

2. A second effort on the same occasion to couple cars with a draw-bar, the first having failed because the bar had become fixed in its position and not readily movable, is not neceshoston and to reach who take the bar had been shaken loose after the first effort and before the second was made, although the second failed for the same reason as the first and the plaintiff was thereby injured.

Rescission. Jurors. Contracts. Before Judge Gober. Polk superior court.
Simmons, J.—1. Upon the trial of a suit in equity to rescind a sale of land, where specific questions of fact were submitted to the jury, it was improper practice for the court to submit also, over objection of counsel, the question of whether the sale should be rescinded or not, that being for the court to decide upon the special facts found by the jury in answer to the other questions submitted. But inasmuch as the facts thus found by the jury are sufficient to authorize the decree made by the court, the judgment will not be reversed on this ground.

2. Polling the jury as to their verdict in a

MORRIS ARRESTED.

Officers in New Orleans Get Him Yes-J. E. Morris, the absconding bank cashler, is arrested.

He was apprehended in New Orleans yesterday, and a message to that effect was telegraphed to Chief Connolly.

Chief Connolly telegraphed back to the chief of police at New Orleans to hold Morris, and he will be brought back to Atlanta at once.

The charges that will be brought against Morris are various.

As has already been published, he is accused of forging the name of Mr. C. J. Simmons to a note, and of raising the amount and changing the date on another note signed by Mr. Simmons, as endorser, which note Mr. Simmons says Morris told him he had destracted. him he had destroyed.

Then, as cashier of the Southern Loan and Banking Company, he is accused of embezzle-ment, or breach of trust, and in other cases cheating and swindling are charged to him Morris has many friends in Atlanta, and they are all sorry to see him in such trouble. WEST PEACHTREE STREET.

An Obstructive Fence That the People Want Moved.

There is a fence on West Peachtree street that ought to be removed.

It is at the corner of Pine street, in front of the residence of Mr. Morris, and juts out on the sidewalk several feet, The beauty of the street is marred by the fence, and the property owners in that neighborhood are anxious to have it re-Moved.

At the meeting of the council on Monday, the matter took definite shape in the form of a resolution introduced by Councilman Holbrook.

This resolution provided for the opening of West Peachtree street, making it a uniform width between Pine and Cedar streets.

"The object of the resolution," said Mr. Holbrook, "is to have that fence set back. That's all." The resolution, which was referred to the street committee, named Messrs. C. M. Hunnicutt and Hoke Smith as assessors of the damages, if any, to the property.

Heart Failure, Sudden Death. The prayer of the Christian pleads for guar-dianship against sudden death, and yet alas, how many leaves the world for better or for worse without a single moment's warning. He died of heart failure. The tired and weary died of heart failure. The tired and weary heart failed while engaged in its momentous task of pumping the blood from the arteries and forcing it into every big and little vein that the wasting tissues of the flesh might be replenished. How important then that the great stream of life be kept pure and its corpuscles red and active, lest the fluid grows clogged and sluggish, and the heart in an extraordinary effort snaps without a signal the thread of its muscular strength. It is your duty as one who loves the life that God has given him, to assist nature in maintaining free action of the who loves the me that God has given him, to assist nature in maintaining free action of the circulatory system by keeping the blood in a state of purity and health. Nature has supplied healing and strengthening herbs for this purpose. Science has discovered what they are and the eminent Dr. John Bull, of Louisville Kv. has blanded them in his synarious. ville, Ky., has blended them in his superior preparation known as Dr. Bull's Sarsaparilla. preparation known as Dr. Buu's Salsapen.

A Silent Appeal for Help.

When your kidneys and bladder are inactive, they are making a silent appeal for help. Don't disregard it, but with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters safely impel them to activity. They are in immirent danger, and it is fool-hardiness to shut one's eyes to the fact. Be wise in time, too, if you experience manifestations of dyspepsia, malaria, rheumatism, constipation or nerve trouble. The Bitters before a meal adds zest to it.

Mr. John M. Moore, the Popular Peachtree Retail Shoe Merchant, to Retire From the Retail Trade and go Into the Manufactur

Mr. John M. Moore, the popular retail shoe merchant on Peachtree street, offers his stock this morning at cost. He has determined to go into the boot and shoe manufacturing business exclusively. He has been in a quiet way manufacturing boots and shoes for some months, and now that he has arranged for an immense building in the suburbs of the city, and will go into the manufacturing business, he offers his entire stock of boots and shoes at actual cost. When Mr. of boots and shoes at actual cost. When Mr. Moore says he will sell his goods at cost, you may depend upon it that it means cost.

Everybody who needs shoes should go at once to his store and secure a bargain. He has a full assorted line of the most stylish boots and shoes both for ladies, gents, misses and children. Now, Mr. Moore does not say he will sell these goods below cost and that the price will be nominal, or that you can get what you want at just what you propose to give. He plainly says he will sell them at actual cost. He realizes the fact that he will less somewhere. lose some money in doing this, but his plans have been perfected for the manufacturing business, and he must go at once into it.

Mr. Moore has made a fine record since he en-tered the retail boot and shoe business. His store is one of the most popular in this city. He is known to carry the very best goods, and has all known to carry the very best goods, and has all the time sold them at reasonable prices. His many friends will be glad to know that he will be a pioneer in the boot and shoe business in Atlanta. His education, his fine practical common sense, his judgment well fit him for the new duties he will assume in the manufacturing business. Having been reared practically in this line, he is at home in it and is thoroughly conversant with every detail. This will be Atlanta's first factory of this kind, and to say that it will be a success of this kind, and to say that it will be a success will be only a repetition of an acknowledged fact, since Mr. Moore will have charge of the establish-ment

Now, don't forget that he wants to sell his entire stock. Let ladies, gentlemen, children, in fact everybody who wants shoes at actual cost, go to his store immediately, for it will take but a few days to dispose of his stock.

THE ANNEXATION OF WEST END AGAIN BEING AGITATED.

Mayor Hemphill Appoints a Committee of Councilmen and Citizens to Consider the Plan-Mayor Nelms's Views.

Mayor Hemphill announced yesterday the following committee on the annexation of West End, pursuant to the resolution unanimously adopted by the council at its meeting last Monday. The resolution was introduced by Mr. King, of the sixth ward, who is made chairman of the committee, on the part of At-

A Talk With Mayor Nelma

A Constitution reporter called on his honor, Dr. John W. Nelms, the mayor of West End, at his office in the old capitol building yesterday.

"Have you seen of the action of the Atlanta ouncil on the annexation of West End?" he was asked. "I have," said Mayor Nelms, "and I have been thinking of the matter this morning. I like the spirit in which Atlanta has gone at the matter, and I will assure the public that West End will meet it in the same spirit half

"When will the West End council act on the matter?" "Our next regular meeting is the first Monday night in February, but it will give me pleasure to call the council together at any time that its members signify consider subject. There is, of course, no goubt about its adopting a similar resolution to that of the Atlanta council, for at least, no harm can come from negotiating. The committees can meet and talk the matter over, and they can possibly agree upon terms for annexation sat-isfactory to both West End and Atlanta. This agreement can be submitted to the people, and if it is approved, that settles it. If it is not, no harm is done. As for myself, I was opposed to annexation when the question was up before, and I voted against it. I did so because I did not think that the inducements offered for becoming a part of Atlanta corresponded the proportionate responsibility which West End would have assumed by annexing itself. The public debt of Atlanta is, I believe, over two million dollars. Of course as a part of the city we would be compelled to bear our proportionate share of this. We would be willing to do this if in return we were guaranteed and were given advantages which would make matters even. I think that, whenever Atlanta makes up its mind that it is willing to take in West' End on an exactly equal, fair and upright basis, West End will join it. I do not think it will until we consider that the trade is

The response to our present great sale is phenomenal. The rush increases daily. There's a constant jam and squeeze on the inside. Elbow room is at a premium. Bargains are vanishing rapidly. Fresh offerings hourly supplement the original items. Never before has such enthusiasm existed about a Clothing event. Buyers are ready and eager. The discounts and reductions are recognized as being real and liberal. It's so much money lost to us—made by you. We don't mind. Business has its ups and downs same as anything else. Three months ago prices were way up; today they are way down. Such is life. EISEMAN BROS.
